The sixth annual World Oceans Day took place on Sunday, June 8, with hundreds of events around the world.

A healthy planet requires a healthy ocean, yet the ocean faces great risks such as overfishing and climate change. The United Nations designated a World Oceans Day as a way to raise global awareness about these issues and to focus on solutions.

In Washington, kids could visit the Seattle Aquarium to learn how to become an Ocean Hero. In Durban, South Africa, surfers, scientists, and others paddled out to highlight the plight of sharks. And in Fujisawa-city, Japan, people could participate in beach and underwater cleanups, not to mention sand art workshops.

Did You Know?

- The ocean covers 70 percent of our planet and produces 70 percent of the oxygen we breath.
- Plastics and other trash can be harmful to marine life. Loggerhead sea turtles often mistake plastic bags for food. Trash covering the surface of the ocean can also block sunlight from reaching plant life below.
